Our vision of financially satisfied, successful customers is based on a simple, time-tested premise. We believe our customers can save more time and money if — after carefully shopping around and comparing choices — they bring all their financial services to one trusted provider. Some people believe it's smarter to disperse risk by dividing their assets among a half-dozen or more providers. A laudable goal, but then what? They have to monitor the performance, ethics and reputation of a half-dozen or more providers. They waste time keeping track of where their assets are. They drown in monthly account statements. They can't take advantage of volume discounts. If you find one trusted provider that can satisfy all your financial services needs and save you time and money, why not bring all your business to that trusted provider?
